The seed is planted

The seed is planted
765 seeds, each one unique each one a separate entity yet still a part of the whole with something very special to offer.
Each has its own niche,
whether it be that of a leader
or a follower,
an athlete or a fan,
the lead in the play
or a member of the stage crew.

The seed sprouts
tentatively letting out roots, exploring the environment.
Lifting its leaves to the sun,
the seed discovers its talent
talents and capabilities
Sanctity
Scholarship
Sportsmanship

The seed is strengthened feeding on countless raindrops
It reaches maturity becoming a full fledged member of a great ecosystem.

The seed is planted ...
We are the seed.

anxiously awaits the lunch bell.

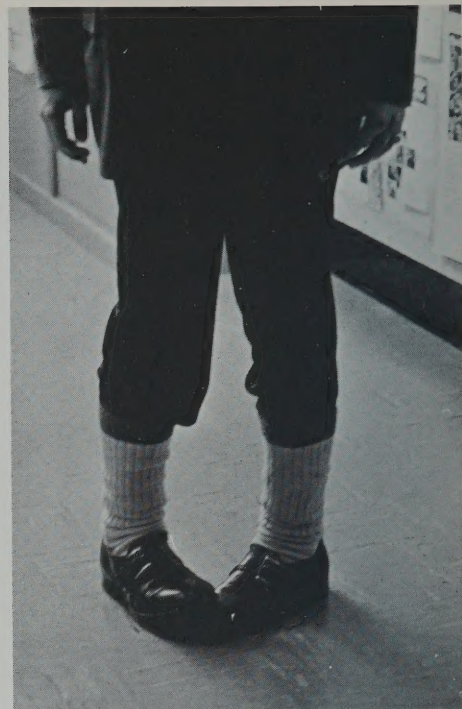

For whom the bell tolls

"Brrring!" The morning chimes rang awakening all for the beginning of a new school day. Many walked down the corridors mesmerized. Morning classes seemed to have a certain stillness. Seniors having study during first and second period had the luxury of sleeping late. "Coffee and donuts, anyone?" Second period study attracted growling stomachs to the cafeteria. Break time sent students rushing in all directions: the candy store, lockers, the office, and finally to homeroom to catch the latest school news. Classes resumed. The sound of growling stomachs could be heard again as lunchtime drew near.

"Brrring!" The wait was over; students hurried to lunch.

Above: Trying to squeeze in a last few minutes of study before the bell, Cathy Schensnol prepares for a first period test.

Stomach growls silenced in cafeteria

The afternoon offered opportunities for relief. The morning stomach growls were satisfied when students bombarded the cafeteria to fortify themselves with an afternoon's supply of energy. Seniors engaged in the work study program left early each afternoon for on the job training. Those fortunate upperclassmen who enjoyed an extra hour of sleep in the morning could relax with an afternoon nap if they were free during last period.

Both faculty and students appreciated the assemblies which provided learning outside the classroom. Students yelled and screamed legally during the frequent Friday afternoon rallies designed to ignite spirit for various athletic events.

Right: Putting their free time to good use, Steven Belmore, Owen Lavalée and Richard Lapointe study in the quiet library.

Media Club, spirit fill afterschool hours

Homework! That terrible creature that controls most nights of student-kind. It not only ravaged a two good hours of the evening but also left students mentally drained.

Homework did leave some time for other night owl endeavors in the Feehanite life.

For the "spirit" inclined there were evening Spirit Committee meetings as well as the Student Council Dance and Building and Grounds get-togethers.

Thespians scheduled many evening Drama Club meetings. Secretaries met on Tuesday evenings to practice their skills. The Medical Careers Club enjoyed visits from those in hospital work. Whenever the light in Room 104 burned through the night, it was yearbook deadline time.

Planting ...

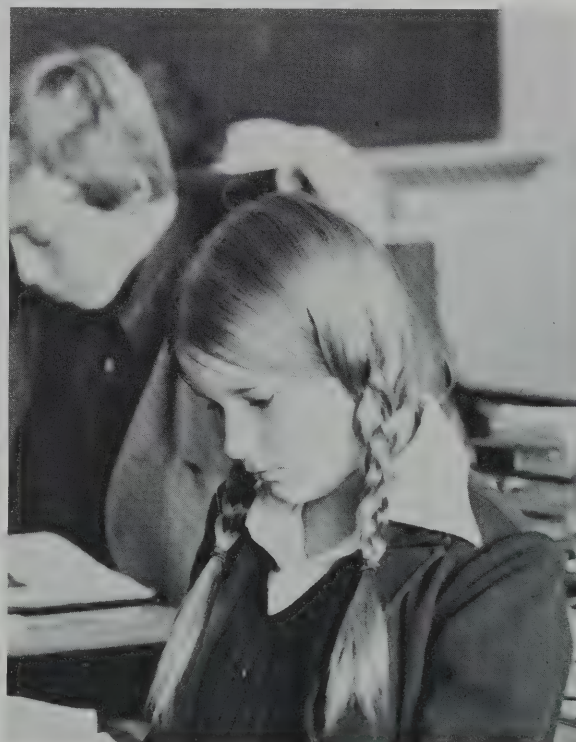

The frost has thawed
It is time for planting
The oven is warmed.
Calisthenics warm up stiff muscles.
Awaiting a fly ball,
An outfielder shades his eyes.
The seed is nurtured by the soil
Warmed by the sun
Fed by the rain.
Students study French verbs
Putt a ball
Rehearse lines from a play.
The plant grows
Shooting forth green leaves
And golden roots;
Making a cabinet
Throwing a softball
Perfecting journalism skills.
throughout these months of spring
The embryos are strengthened
Soon to gather harvest ...
... a harvest of knowledge
... a harvest of athletics
... a harvest of activities
... a harvest of friends

Right: Listening intently to a student's comment, Father Brian Harrington encourages open discussion in Revelation II.

Religion classes encourage renewal, growth.

Jesus' description of Himself as "the very stone the builders rejected" did "turn out to be the most important stone" of our school and religion department.

As part of the Holy Year of renewal and reconciliation and to sustain Christian values, a morning prayer service was initiated. Echo retreats and the newly established Days of Reflection at Mercy Lodge served as additional opportunities for self-examination. After having studied the plight of the United Farm Workers, each class made a recommendation to the Bishops' Conference on "Liberty and Justice for All".

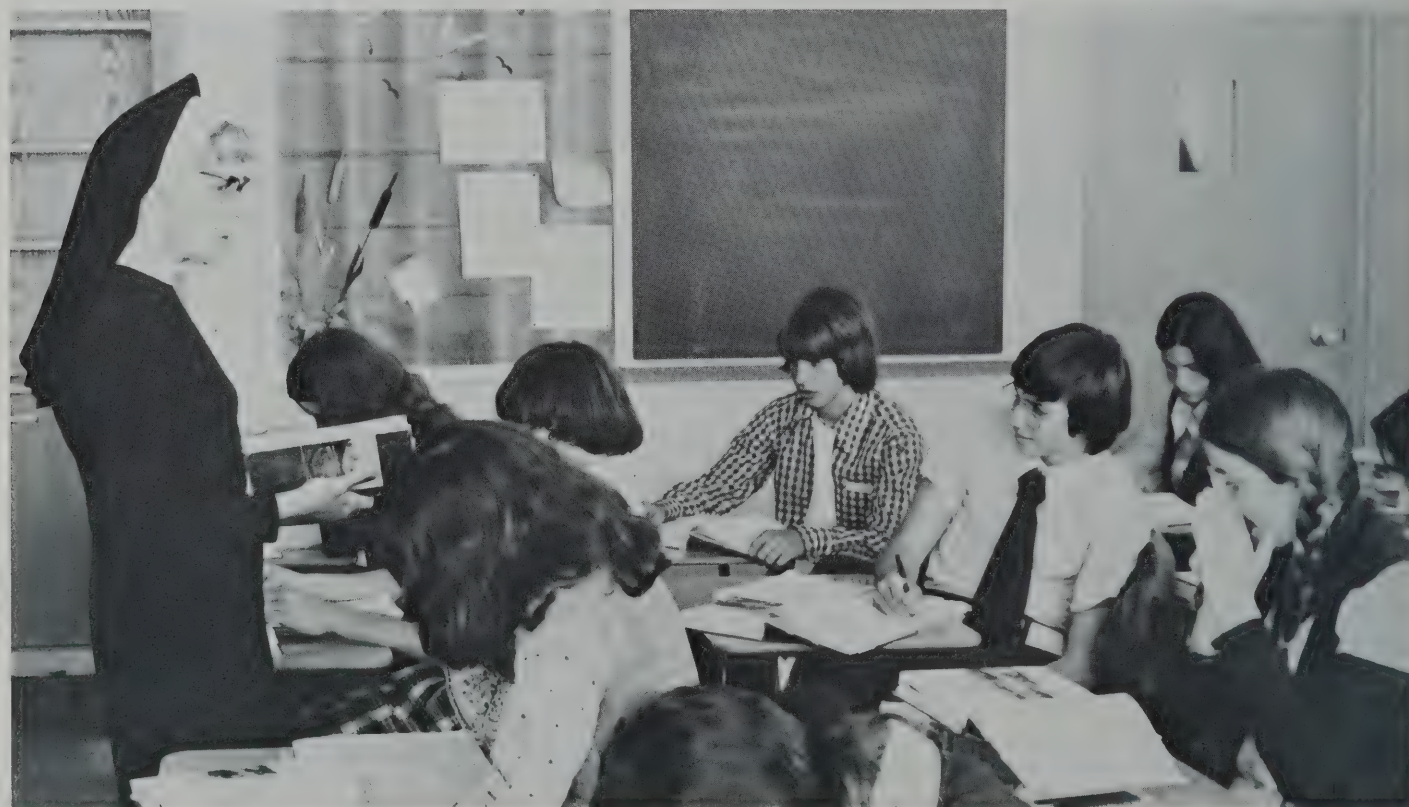

Above: Christian Studies topics provoke deep thinking. Seniors Linda Meunier and Lori Armell meditate on a reading assignment.

Below: "B. seis; G. dos; N, diez . . ." Freshman Steven Felici proudly plays the role of caller during an exciting game of Bingo in his Spanish I class.

Christmas carols in French class? Students in S. Sheila's French IV class sang traditional Yuletide hymns in French, of course. Feehan's language department strove to make its curriculum educational and fun. Spanish I and II students played Bingo and Hangman while French "etudiants" learned vocabulary through crossword puzzles.

Of course, it was not all fun and games. Latin students along with their French and Spanish counterparts conjugated verbs and memorized idiomatic expressions. Book reports and essays supplemented routine textbook drills. Plans were made for a trip to the city of Quebec.

Boys bake, Girls build

Stereotypes became a thing of the past at Feehan as boys became bakers and girls became builders. Future homemakers received on the job training from Mrs. Schensnol, homemaking teacher, as they actually prepared food for S. Faith's meeting with Bishop Daniel Cronin.

While students in home-ec made bread, students in shop made . . . what else, bread boxes! With the aid of shop instructor, Mr. Fortin, boys and girls produced creative and useful products, some becoming Christmas presents for family and friends. Manual skills coupled with traditional book learning helped Feehanites to become well rounded persons.

Left: Mixing the ingredients well, Constance Bradshaw prepares to decorate a cake with the expert assistance of Mrs. Schensnol.

Feehan takes track laurels

The Shamrocks' track season started out with a bang! Through hard practice and determination the Shamrocks swept the Southeastern Massachusetts Division II Championship. Some of our Shamrocks seemed to have become addicted to breaking school records such as Bob Robillard's javeline throw of 175'8" and John Lambert's high jump of 6'2¾".

Juniors also contributed to new school records. Rick Santos' hurdle record was 16 seconds and Peter Lambert's record pole vault was 11'9".

Although many individual records were set, the Feehan track team was a real team. Through team effort the Shamrocks compiled a fine record, losing only to Dighton-Rehoboth. The Shamrocks proved themselves superior at the Divisional track meet where they captured first place.

Right: Striving and straining to win, James Dever and Bob Ashe give it all they have in competition against Fairhaven.

Girls break records in track and field.

It doesn't matter whether you win or lose but how much fun you have. Our girls track team proved they have the "spirit", win or lose. Stretching muscles unknown to most of us, our girls prepared themselves to jump, run, and throw with everything they've got.

A new record for the javeline throw was established by Judy DiRenzo, breaking the previous year old record.

Two sisters, Dolores and Virginia McDonagh, battled the mile run against each other all season, with Viginia defeating her elder sister and setting a new record.

All and all, the season proved to be successful through their time, effort, and of course their strenous exercise.

Above right: "Up and across", is Laurie Walker stretching to gain feet in the broad jump, for points in the final score.

Below: Coming from behind is Tracy Douglas, proving her spirit to the fullest by passing a fellow opponent with strength and power.

Golf team places third in division.

It was a successful year for the members of the golf team. First row: Scott Tatro, Timothy McAlice, Robert Welch and Arthur Boulet.

Second row: Mark Ferland, Russ Quaglia, Coach Neil Loew, Brian Gamache, Neil Boyer.

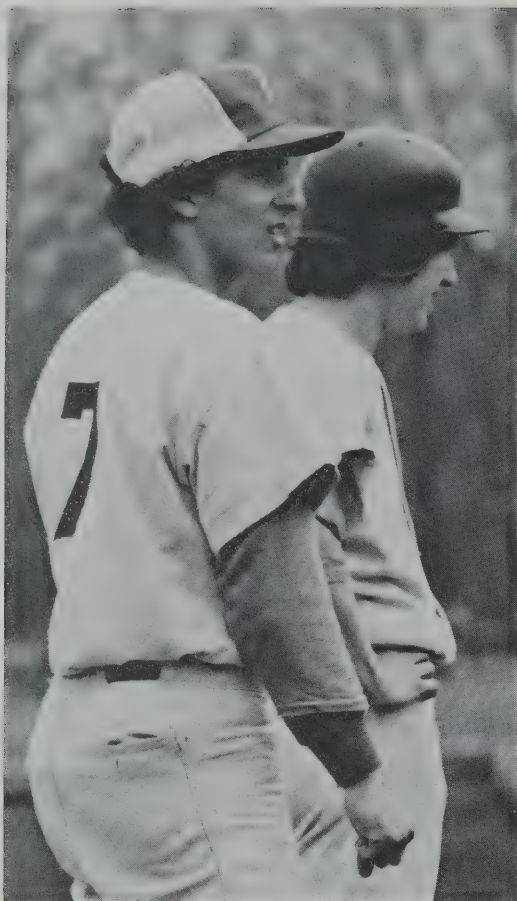

"Seems I do better in the club house than on the course!", exclaims one discouraged golfer. Golf is more than just hitting a ball in a hole. It is a lot of concentration and hard work. Our team, guided by Coach Neil Loew, won many matches, but such honor did not happen without hours of practice. Lots of superior talent was shown by senior star Brian Gamache who was a major asset to the team. The golf team had a fulfilling season and achieved it due to their devoted spirit and willingness to, "get out there and win!" The team itself is very ambitious and the only lacking thing is the "hole-in-one."

Above: "Which way did it go", wonders Mark Ferland as he casually swings his golf club searching for his lost golf ball. Above right: "Should I hit it from a right angle, left angle or straight on to make this hole", says Russ Quaglia concentrating on his swing. Below right: Measuring their distance to perfection, Neil Boyer and Arthur Boulet are confident in their calculations.

Above: In anticipation of the next play, Frank DiRenzo clenches his fist waiting for the umpire's decision as Michael Kirby lends his support.

The bases are loaded, a man at first, second and third. A single is needed for a man to come home and put us ahead in the ninth inning. A sudden burst of energy is released as a crack of the bat sends the ball soaring over the head of a challenger in left field. The score: Feehan 3, opponent 0.

The leadership of Coach Galligan has helped the baseball team improve this year. Working together to develop skills keeps the team on top.

Although the team sometimes gets behind, the boys always try to achieve what some call "The Impossible Dream."

Terrance Smulligan and Thomas Grimes. It's been a rough game but our baseball team will pull through victoriously.

Diamonds are a girl's best friend

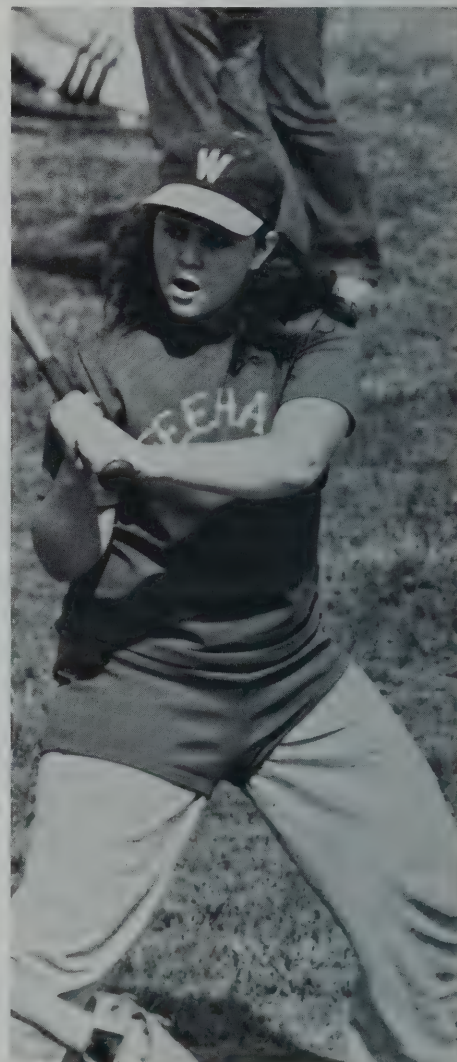

"The count is three and two in the last of the ninth. The batter steps to the box, composes herself and, after a moment of hesitation, knocks a single into left field driving in the winning run." The Feehan softball team, coached by newcomer, Sister Norma Mousseau ended many games this way, winning one third of the games by less than three runs. The girls did well, winning seven of their twelve games. With several experienced frosh returning next year, the team can anticipate an even better season.

Above: Shortstop Denise Neveux anxiously awaits the low ground ball which will set up Feehan's patented double play.

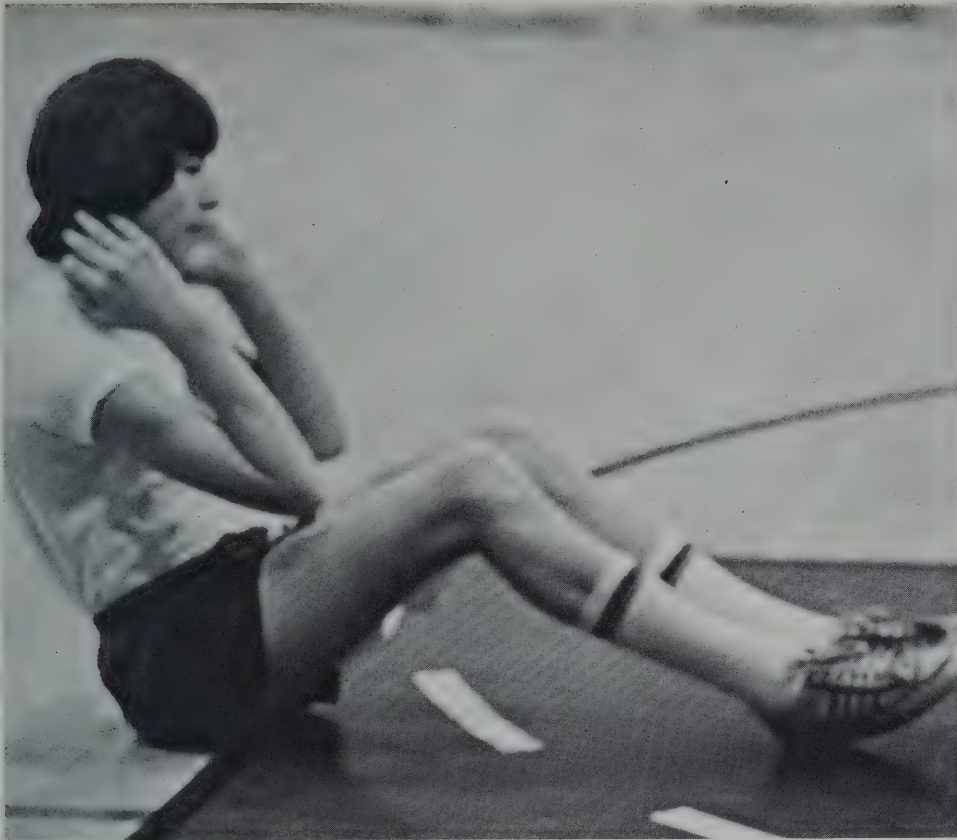

Above: Congratulating the other team on a well played game are Joan Rhilinger, Donna Gaboury, Shannon Lee, Sue Benoit, and Jane Kelly.

Phys. Ed. can be phun

One of the most valuable lessons learned in Feehan's gym was the lesson of learning to "make do." The Phys. Ed staff overcame gigantic hurdles to bring top notch instruction to the students. Engaging in activities which required minimal equipment, boys wrestled, played volleyball and ran the track. The girls, double in number but with only half the staff, matched the boys' enthusiasm for gym. Anticipating more equipment next year, the staff has added Advanced Phys. Ed. to the program. The course is bound to be popular.

Above: "Only forty nine more to go," sighs Daniel Des Vergnes as he struggles through sit ups in Physical Education class.

Below: Because of limited budgets, gym students must be resourceful. Here one class substitutes a volleyball for basketball.

Pick of the crop

Honor students earned recognition in National Honor Society, Spanish National Honor Society, and Quill and Scroll. Each group has a dual function: to recognize academic excellence and to provide service to the school.

Bicentennial speeches, Thanksgiving baskets and tutoring underclassmen were some of the projects in which these students employed their talents.

The highest scoring seniors on the PSAT were Donna Laliberte and Thomas Blythe. Their ability makes them eligible for scholarships and higher honors.

Girls a hit with their dads

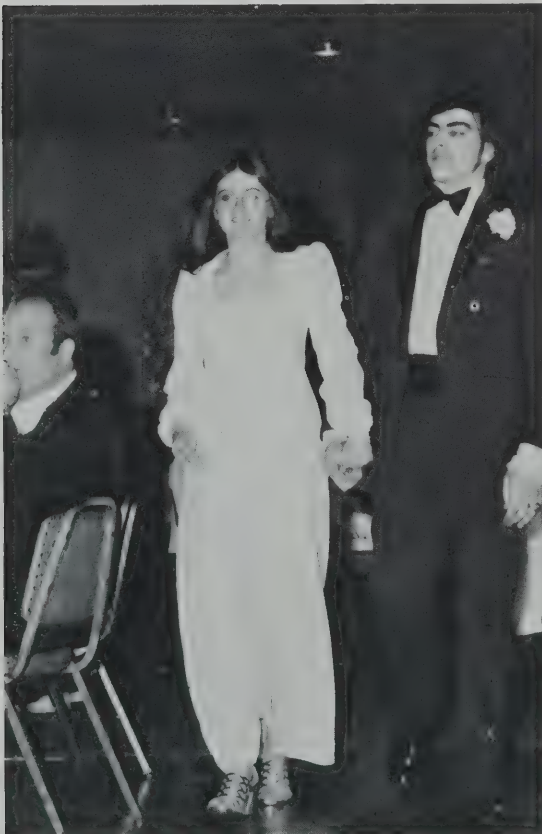

P for proper, R for romantic, O for optimistic, and M for mucho gusto. Put it all together and you get PROM! Every girl awaited the arrival of her date with his tie and tails.

They arrived at last and were met by the beaming chaperones before receiving their favors from S.M. Faith. White table cloths and centerpieces of freshly picked flowers helped to create a mood of elegance. The pace quickened as couples took to the floor to waltz, bump and hustle. A mixture of cool composesures and jiddering stomachs could be found in the always crowded ladies' room where the girls gabbed while the boys nervously awaited picture taking.

More dancing and socializing before the stroke of twelve summoned the reluctant couples to depart bringing with them the memories of an evening of elegance.

File Copy Secretaries stage bee Rm. 104

Members of the career oriented clubs discovered that preparing for the future can be both hard work and fun. The Future Secretaries staged a Spelling Bee and funded their projects with the proceeds from a Halloween cake sale. The Medical Careers Club kept abreast of the latest techniques demonstrated by the frequent guest speakers. Old misconceptions of the carefree life of a teacher dissolved quickly as Future Teachers learned of the responsibilities each teacher has.

Seasonal issues of the Flash were anxiously anticipated. Staff members covered social, athletic and classroom activities, laboring into the nights in order to get each issue to the readers before vacations.

One less bell to answer

The final bell sounded. The last locker was closed. Students boarded buses for the last time until the fall. Suntan oil replaced books and bathing suits replaced regulation blazers as Feehanites took to the beaches. Homework became a thing of the past. Students found jobs at nursing homes and summer camps.

Some students never escaped school. They struggled to make up necessary credits in Math and English at summer school. All too soon, the summer vacation ended. The bells sounded and students opened their books to a brand new chapter.

... Reaping ...

The fruit at its ripest;
An Indian Summer sun sets
On a lonely long distance runner
Finally reaching the home stretch.
Schedules fall into place
World history and honors English.
A golden orange moon watches over
An astronomy observing session.
Gathering together for reaping
The last flower is tied on the float
The hours of studying
The final practice for the big game.
The harvest of the fields;
A winning float
A well written English paper
The roar of the crowd ...
The sound of the gun ...
The final victory.
... a harvest of knowledge
... a harvest of activities
... a harvest of friends.

Seniors study Sci-fi.

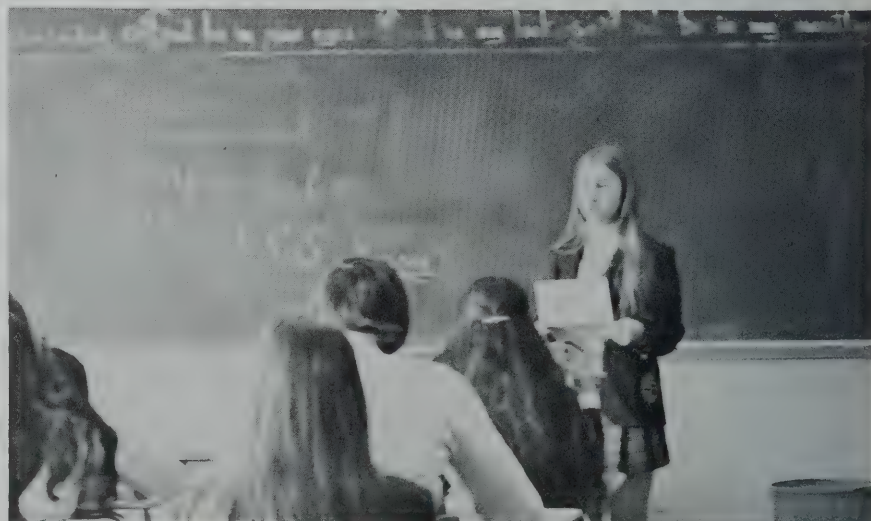

Lights, camera, action! Students used the increased media material at Feehan to broaden their knowledge of literature. Videotaped movies were employed in classroom situations and in some cases, students used media equipment to tape their own productions.

Freshmen thespians studied "Romeo and Juliet" in first year literature while sophomores'

English and History classes worked hand and hand to give a better understanding of American Studies. Juniors studied composition, vocabulary and British literature, viewing the movie version of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew". Seniors chose from a variety of electives ranging from Science Fiction—Fantasy to Modern Novel to Poetry.

Classes focus on Bicentennial events

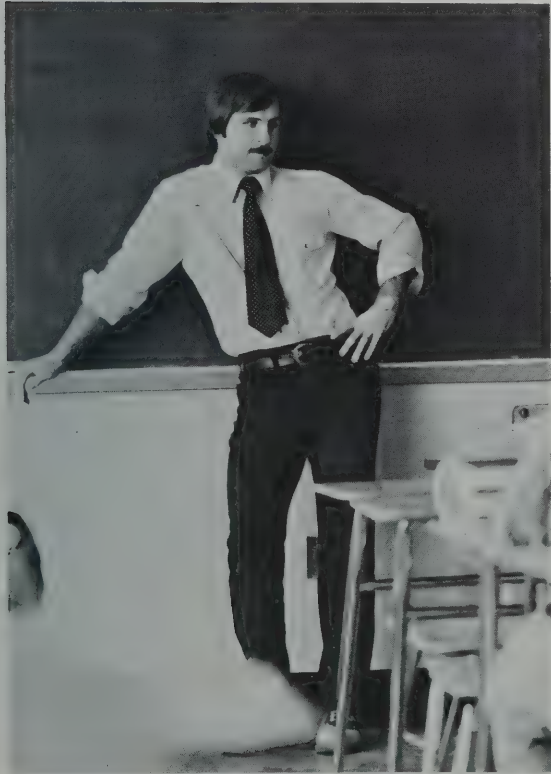

Two hundred years of history! The Bicentennial affected many facets of school life including the history department. The history curriculum spanned the two hundred plus years of our country along with exploring the first couple of thousand years of World History which led to the formation of the United States.

Freshmen explored world history from neolithic man to detente. Sophomores and Juniors studied American history in conjunction with their study of American literature in English. Seniors chose from a variety of electives including two law courses. Students examined the workings of our political system in Government class.

Below: "Communism, Capitalism, what's the difference?" Mathew Whalen explores different cultures in Isms class.

Below: Freshmen Martha Koshgarian and Susan Tillinghast study the effect of WWII on the American economy.

Above: "How can I teach a law course if there is no law and order in my own class?" queries an exasperated Mr. James Perkosi.

Above: Hurrying to finish before the bell, Sharon St. Pierre completes her essay on the Watergate conspiracy just in time.

Shamrocks place three all-stars

The final seconds ticked off. As the triumphant players ran to the bus, it started to pour. Jubilant fans jumped through puddles on their way back to school. Although many games were played under cloudy skies, Feehan's spirits weren't dampened.

Sun Chronicle All Star Coach—of the—Year Paul O'Boy led Feehan to a 7-3 season, the best in many years. Three seniors, Henry McDeed, Terrence Buckley and Peter Grundy joined Coach O'Boy on the All-Star team. The Shamrocks enjoyed an all-star season, finishing second in Division Two of the Southeastern Massachusetts Conference. Perhaps the most gratifying win for the gridgers was the 18-6 victory over inner-city rival Attleboro High, which was a rain-soaked bout. One of the top-ranked defensive teams in the state, Feehan, held twice Super Bowl Champs North to fourteen points.

Spirit personified.

Make signs, promote spirit, what else do cheerleaders do? They sold cakes and goodies, entered competitions, and, of course, cheered at football and basketball games. "Hey, hey, you! You know what to do! Count! The fans knew just what to do. They responded enthusiastically to the cheerleaders' urging despite frequent inclement weather.

Football players braved poor conditions with pride. Whether there was fair or foul weather, hot sun or cold rain, players practiced every weekday during the season, some weekends and summer sessions. Time and effort were rewarded in a top-notch season!

New team, new hopes

Volleyball at Feehan opened up new avenues for energetic girls. New rules, new coach, new ball contributed to a whole new ball game. The girls' volleyball team, coached by Mr. Paul Klenk, worked hard at the new sport, learning from mistakes. While their record stands at 0-9, hours of practice have transformed a group of girls into a team.

Another fledgling team, cross-country, competed in only their second year of division competition. Coach Mario Santonastaso had his work cut out for him, competing with other teams who were three or four times the size of our five man squad. Although neither a championship nor a winning season was attained, many personal times and records were improved considerably.

Those were the days; those Saturday mornings practicing on the wet, muddy field, those bus rides where you lost your voice from yelling before you even got to the game, and lastly those halftime shows which left memories for the band.

The drill team, headed by Carol Moore and Rae Ann Gilmore and moderated by S. Pauline Lebel joined with the band, colorguard and majorettes in performing a Bicentennial halftime including such songs as "Yankee Doodle" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee". The colorguard and band, directed by S. Evangela performed in the annual Christmas program along with the male choir and members of the Drama club.

In addition to performing at games and rallies, the majorettes entered competition. In order to promote spirit for the football games they donned the attire of the cheerleaders and attempted to execute a cheer at a pre-game rally.

Pencils and records—props for Math and Media.

Tomorrow's radio and television announcers are sitting at desks writing commercials and broadcasts in Media class. Larry Drake, radio announcer from a local station, has taught the class for two years, giving his students first hand experience in broadcasting. The students were supplied with sufficient knowledge of radio and television broadcasting to obtain a third class FCC Radio—Television operating permit. Broadcasting requires time, patience and knowledge.

Media club is for those who desire practical experience in radio. Media club manages WBFH which is in its first full year of operation. WBFH could be heard daily in the cafeteria. Featured are the top forty, news, weather, sports and public service announcements.

There was one team at Feehan almost totally dominated by underclassmen—the Math team. "Coached" by moderator, S. Alice Fontaine, the Math team participated in meets, competing in areas of Arithmetic, Algebra I and II, Plane Geometry and Trigonometry. Losing only two seniors, co-captains Thomas Blythe and James Lew, the Math team can look forward to the return of many seasoned veterans.

Young Council generates new ideas

Two hundred pounds of beans! Student Council members ladled out ham and beans by the bucketful at their Ham and Bean Supper. Although it got off to a slow start, the supper was a great success.

Another major project undertaken by the Council was Homecoming. The committee began in early summer the tedious task of updating Alumni files and mailing letters. The Homecoming week was spiced with a variety of activity including Greaser Day, a trivia quiz and Baby Picture contest featuring football players.

Setting out to inform the class of '79, the project committee sponsored the Freshman Seminar. Various clubs and groups presented themselves to the Freshman class. The Project Committee also sponsored a car wash and the annual Free Flick night, featuring the movie "American Grafitti."

Saddlesores in basketball?

The battle of the century! The annual student-faculty game took on a new twist this year as the participants rode donkeys while they attempted to perform lay-ups and jump shots. The first game saw the male students battle the male faculty. For the first time in Feehan history, the students defeated the faculty. Then the girls joined in the fun, trouncing the female faculty members. In the playoffs, the girls pulled off a surprising upset by a score of ten to eight.

Between games, the audience participated in contests which entailed riding the donkey down the court to pick up a dollar bill ... without falling off.

Above: Attempting to steal the ball, defender Sheila Deam harasses faculty member Mrs. Elaine Condon while Julie Patch tries to maneuver her mount.

Striving hard to win, Colleen Durocher and Patricia Carlson show that they want that ball and will use all their might to get it.

New blood for science department.

Would you believe drama in Physics class? Senior students in Mr. Santonastaso's class dramatized the life of Galileo in conjunction with a chapter explaining his life and work. Other projects in Physics included the plotting of the orbit of Mars and the trajectory of a metal ball.

Future stargazers observed lunar eclipses and the satellites of Jupiter as part of the elective Astronomy program.

S. Rose Angela's Advanced Biology students prepared term papers on topics from "The Life and Death of a Cell" to "The Red Tide". After completing their papers, they embarked upon the task of dissecting a fetal pig.

As a result of Feehan's elevated enrollment, new teachers were added to the Science staff. S. Blanche Gauthier and S. Helene Fortin added new blood to Feehan's science program.

Srs. prepare for SAT's

Something for everyone. Feehan's Math department catered to those advancing Einsteins in Calculus class and to those struggling students who wanted help for SAT's in Basic Math. Freshmen and Sophomores learned the basics in Algebra I and II and applied these concepts in electives during their Junior and Senior year. An Intermediate Math course was introduced designed to prepare Seniors for College boards. Advanced courses like Analysis prepared college bound students for the future while Algebra proved practical in everyday life.

makes perfect

A-S-D-F ... A-S-D-F. Monotonous drills soon showed their purpose as typists' speeds steadily increased. Students in Typing I learned the basics: margins and spacing, etc. They learned more advanced techniques in Typing II. During the Christmas season, a tree was placed in the typing room and awards in the shape of ornaments were given for speed and accuracy.

Future stenographers transcribed hieroglyphics into meaningful business letters three times a week given in conjunction with Shorthand II.

Above: Senior Rae Ann Gilmore strives to reach forty words per minute in her Typing I class.

Creative discipline in Art, Drama

Basics: Basically speaking, that's what Art I students learned. Sister Veronica Fay taught her students form, dimension, color harmony and design. Students experienced hard work and fun while becoming aware of art in their environments.

Mechanical drawing students learned to draw machine specifications. The accuracy of mathematics combined with the proportions of art to provide the building blocks of draftmanship.

"Wake up" exercises and theater mechanics were new experiences for the Creative Communication class. "Open", "overly open" throat, and learning to "give emotions" became class jargon. Sister Marialyn Riley supplemented the course with trips to theatrical productions for interested students.

Carefully plotting a group setting for her three dimensional project, Leslie Clark takes satisfaction in her progress. The basic concepts of drawing must be utilized in order to achieve good proportion.

Chalk up another winning season for the incredible heroines of basketball. The Girls' Basketball team completed another outstanding season of dribbles, shots, rebounds, points and victories! Spanking new cheerleaders from the sophomore class completed the picture of beaming faces and applauding hands.

Tri-captains (a first!) Pat Carlson Melodye Broadley and Eileen Stelmack led the varsity squad comprised of experienced players. Coach Servant had no trouble motivating his girls to play their best!

The last seconds ticked off . . . a desperation shot . . . and Feehan walks off victorious again. Our Varsity basketball team, coached by Mr. Edward Gagnon and his assistant Mr. Douglas DiNardo were adept at last minute heroics and hair raising finishes. The Shamrocks started out slowly, losing four of their first eight games. Then they exploded, rising to the top of Division Two competition. The young team prepared to enter the Southeastern Massachusetts Tourney. Having a varsity consisting almost totally of Juniors, Mr. Gagnon and Mr. DiNardo can anticipate success in 1977.

Snow, sleet and spirit strike again

Strains of "Jingle Bells" and "Tis the Season to Be Jolly" rang in the Yuletide at the annual Christmas concert. The audience forgot the icy roads as they were captivated by the strains of "The Little Drummer Boy" and "Silent Night". Severe weather, common to Feehan events, again failed to dampen spirits.

"The Trees" a comedy set in the early 1920's was staged by the Drama Club. The play emphasized the humorous aspects of family life and the beauty of tradition. Following the play, the Feehan Junior Band, composed of local junior high students, performed while members of the Drill Team and Colorguard awaited their stage debut.

Deadline—the word that strikes fear into the heart of any Flashback staff member. With the help of layouts, copy and prayer the staff toiled to meet those deadlines. The new adviser, Miss Bigos, was new to the world of copy counting, indexing and collect calls to Alabama. She led a group of only ten inexperienced but dedicated students.

The Layout staff, armed with an old cropper held together with masking tape and a hope, designed all pages, while the novice copy staff worked to tell the story of a school year within limited space. When the final deadline was completed, the staff put away their tools with relief—and pride.

Vice Principal Mr. Paul O'Boy sighs through the selling of 600 tickets, "Let's see, one for a dollar out of five is four back." Never giving up, he goes on selling tickets for Saturday's game.

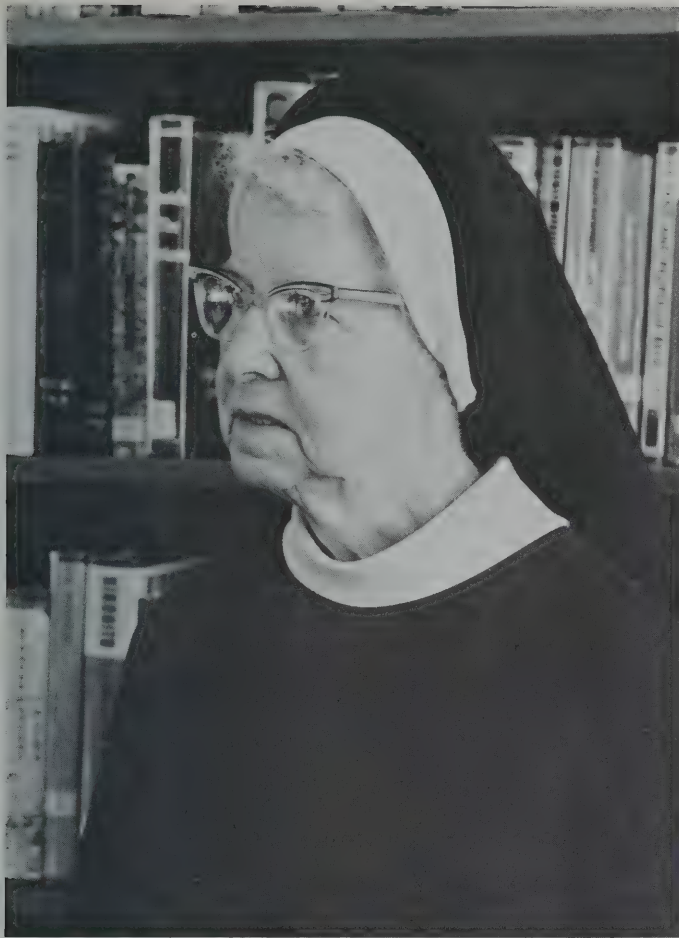

Keeping tabs on the finances, Mrs. Deam is always busy collecting, or at least trying to collect tuition payments. Records are kept in alphabetical order with the hope they stay that way.

New faculty New ideas

The first day of school is always the most difficult not only for new students but also for new teachers. This year many new faculty faces could be seen in the familiar classrooms.

Due to the tremendous effort of new and returning faculty, sports clubs and committees began meeting almost immediately. Many faculty members took advantage of the chance to become closer to their students through involvement in extracurricular activities. The bond uniting the students and teachers is one that can never be broken.

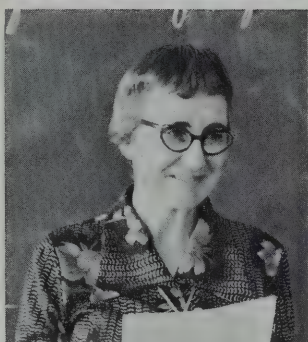

Head of the guidance department, S. Regina Coughlin stops her busy schedule to meet with a student.

Faculty members donate blood.

Cafeteria workers keep smiling after serving lunch to 700 starving students. They are, from left: Ann Bush, Alice LeDoux, Barbara Booth and Shirley Leroux.

At two o'clock the day is just beginning for Mr. Joseph Corseia, Feehan's janitor.

A man of many talents, Mr. Downarowicz is always involved in everything.

"Bingo, I win!" "These wastebaskets need to be emptied." "One Feehan Special, please."

Some people do a lot for us but usually go unrecognized for their work. Every Wednesday and Sunday, Mr. Downarowicz takes care of Bingo, with all proceeds benefiting our school's activities, including the hockey team which he also coaches.

Our poor janitor is here every day waiting patiently for the students to leave so he may be able to finish his job. Each day our cafeteria workers prepare all sorts of treats for us.

"Frankenstein, I presume." No, it's only Mr. Santanastaso donating his blood in a special program set up by the Medical Careers Club.

New School, new problems, new friends

"My parents made me!" "I'd get a better education here," "My friends went here and I like my friends." These are some of the reasons Freshman came to Feehan. When asked what they thought of upperclassmen, some responses were: "Haven't had any problems," "They give good directions, only to the wrong places!" One anguished Freshman had this sad tale to tell: "First they passed out schedules with numbers which corresponded to days of the week, until S Day fell on Monday and I found myself in Calculus instead of Biology." A general consensus of the Freshman class was that they had alot to learn and Feehan was a great place to do it.

Freshman attendants Martha Koshgarian and Ellen Cuddy nervously await the beginning of the Homecoming parade while classmates add the finishing touches.

Soph cheerleaders support girl hoopsters.

Sophomore attendants Marilyn Castro and Gisele Neveux represent their class in the Homecoming Parade riding their float which displays hopes of a Feehan victory over Fairhaven.

The Class of '78 soon became actively involved in Feehan life. A sophomore cheering squad was started which cheered for our three time division champion girls' basketball team. Some sophomore projects included Thanksgiving baskets for needy families and the annual Freshman-Sophomore Social. The Sophomore float, a product of much hard work and little sleep, exemplified Sophomore spirit to a T.

Many sophomores donated their time as tutors for the National Honor Society, helping fellow students with Algebra, Biology and English Vocabulary. During their second year at Feehan, sophomores committed themselves to more responsibility and loved every minute of it!

Soph spirit explodes!

The gym exploded! Sophomore spirit echoed through the halls at float meetings, football games and rallies! At the homecoming rally the sophomore class disproved the old adage that seniors possess the most spirit. All during Homecoming week, Sophomores bought tickets for the game against Fairhaven and with each ticket they received a link in the spirit chain. After measuring the chain, the result showed the tenth graders, with 77% of their class attending the game, had won the spirit contest. Of course, attendance at football games does not constitute spirit but sophomores showed their loyalty in all aspects of Feehan life. They served at the Ham and Bean Supper and slicked their hair back for Greaser Day. During their free time, sophomores visited nearby Nazareth Hall to play with the retarded children of the area. One sophomore, Sheila Deam, won the grand prize of a stereophonic sound system for being one of the top salesman in the annual fund raising drive.

Sophomore year marked a time of new responsibilities for Feehan students. For the first time, sophomores were members of varsity teams and many of them earned letters. Sophomores made their presence known at Feehan through their unique form of school spirit.

Junior float places second

During the final week before Homecoming, Juniors worked long into the night to complete their float entitled: "Now's the Time for Jr. Spirit." The Juniors placed well in the contest, finishing second only to the more experienced seniors. Junior cheerleaders and majorettes yelled support from the sidelines to our boys on the football field, many of whom were Juniors.

A new experience for Juniors was preparing for the Junior-Senior Prom. Flowers, tuxedos, and receiving lines—just a few things which made Prom night unforgettable.

Juniors received new responsibilities along with new privileges. Free studies were utilized to prepare for electives now open to them. Involvement became the key word in Junior lives at Feehan.

Juniors gain new status

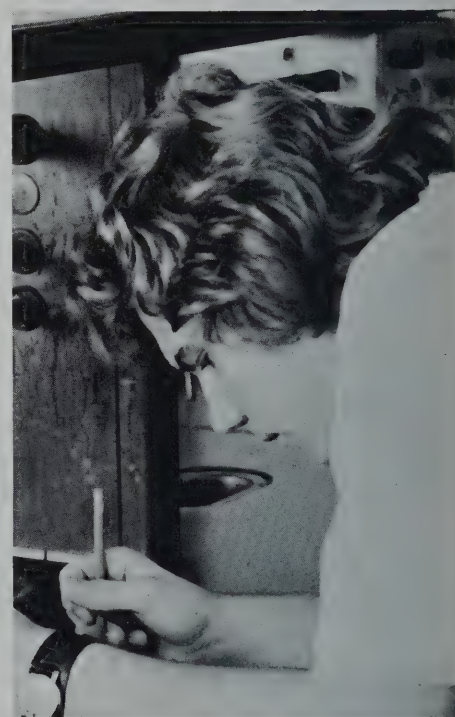

Juniors officially become upperclassmen with the long anticipated reception of class rings. These symbols of accomplishment and challenge were blessed by Fr. Harrington and distributed by S. Mary Faith at a Mass which marked the opening of the school year.

The new upperclassmen soon found that the freedom of choosing elective courses brought creativity to a surface. Juniors grew and experienced college boards, term papers and visits from college officials. They realized that the time for decisions is approaching.

The class of '77 strove to distinguish itself from the others by enjoying the status of upperclassmen.

Seniors reflect; prepare for future

Graduation is always a time of pride, excitement and anticipation. The seniors of '76 had the added distinction of being the Bicentennial class. In keeping with the national spirit of looking back while building the future, the seniors recalled old times together while preparing to pursue their individual goals.

The class of '76 initiated the Bicentennial observance colorfully as they proudly marched along their red, white and blue float.

"Programs! Anyone want to buy a program?" Laurie Armell's enthusiastic cry can be heard by all as she sells football programs.

And away they go ...

"And away we go!" This was what the senior class did, winning first place in the float contest. Seniors worked until the wee hours of the morning constructing their float. With busy hands and enthusiastic spirits their efforts proved worthy of recognition. It was the first time that the class of '76 realized its goal. Representing the "soon-to-be" graduates were Homecoming Queen Rosemary Healy and attendants Teresa Castro, Priscilla Ferland and Julia Patch.

Seniors face hard decisions

1976 was an important year for all Americans, especially for those graduating from high school. In addition to being the year of graduation, the Bicentennial and the Olympics, '76 saw many seniors reach the legal age. The young adults became particularly aware of the political situation, hoping to make a wise choice when they exercised for the first time their right to vote in the presidential elections.

Choosing the nation's president was only one of the tough decisions with which the class of '76 was confronted. Seniors had to decide upon schools and careers.

Seniors tire from term papers, applications

Term papers, college applications, tests and more homework. When will it all end? That's the way many of the seniors felt as Christmas vacation approached. Term paper deadlines coincided with deadlines for college applications. Seniors worked nervously, vowing they would never procrastinate again. Finally it was over: term papers were in, college applications were out, Christmas vacation began. Sixteen days of rest and recuperation after four months of labor and panic! But who rests during vacations?!

Senior spooks

"Boo . . . Boo . . ." Ghosts, witches, ghouls and elves emerged from quiet corners during the annual "Spook'em Day" hoping to frighten our Homecoming rival, Fairhaven.

Our senior football heroes generated much competition as they rivaled one another for the "cutest baby" award. Students cast their penny ballots, and after a tight race, Tom Lennox, who accumulated the most pennies, walked away with the coveted distinction.

Great Expectations

Seniors came closer to achieving long anticipated goals with the passing of each day. Having successfully dealt with the "crises" of high school life, the class of '76 looked to a future of productivity and fulfillment. Among the most popular career goals were: medicine, law, dentistry, education, professional sports, journalism, business and broadcasting.

Seniors reap full harvest

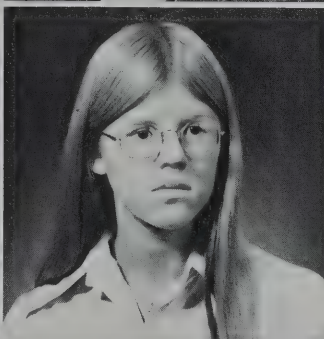

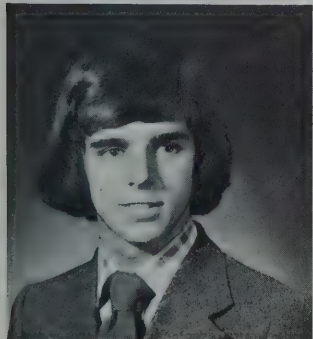

What is it like to be a senior? It is the honor of occupying the front rows of the auditorium. It is having your float finally win first place. It is sitting on Santa's lap to read the Christmas lists of all the underclassmen. It is accepting an award on Parents' Night in recognition of four years of concentrated effort. It is reaping a harvest and loving it, looking forward to graduation day but really hating to see it come.

Acknowledgements

Above: Croppers, pica rulers, mounds of pictures and chewed pencils are the indispensable tools used in creating a yearbook.

All portrait photography was done by Mr. Thomas Maguire of T.D. Brown Studios, Cranston, Rhode Island. In candid photography, Mr. Maguire was assisted by student photographers Thomas Blythe, Maria Declemente and James Lew. The Flashback 1976 was enrolled in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, National Yearbook Association, Quill and Scroll and Paragon Workshops.

Flashback 1976 was printed by Paragon Press, Montgomery, Alabama, represented by Mr. Bill

Morgan. The 112 pages were printed in black and white on white Bordeaux paper. Endsheets were photographic reproductions. The cover, designed by Maurice Guerrier, was silkscreened in four colors.

Headlines throughout the book used 24 point Optima type set in capitals and lower case letters. All captions used 8 point type; body copy 10 point Optima.

Guided by adviser, Miss Karen Bigos, the 1976 Flashback was written, designed and completed by staff members: Editor-in-chief, Dolores McDonagh; Managing editor, Judith O'Neil; Copy editor, Donna Laliberte, assisted by: Dirk Belt, Tammie Daley, Maureen Early, Judith O'Neal and Cynthia Parente; Layout editor, Theresa Castro, assisted by Mary Diaz and Kathryn Reynolds.

The Business moderator, S. Pauline Lebel was assisted by Marianne Bahr, Mary Cote, Roxanne Desjardins, Mary Jorge, Thomas Lennox, Joanne Meegan, Louis Molina, Mary Motyl, Michele Nadeem, Kathleen Pistocco, Michelle Roberge, Margo Robichaud.

Class of 76 ...

The last bundle of wheat is tied
The last curtain call is taken
The last race is run
The last bell sounds
The cycle is complete;
The planting, watering, reaping.
It's all been worthwhile
The wait is over
And we enjoy the fruits of the harvest.

Yet the cycle never really ends
Each of us goes our separate way
Starting our own harvest
Using the knowledge we've gained
We begin new lives

Make new friends
Dream new dreams
Each successive harvest
Is better
Building on each previous one.

Each experience is a harvest

New and unique
Memorable in its own way
We shall never forget our harvest at Feehan

.... our harvest of knowledge
.... our harvest of athletics
.... our harvest of activities
.... our harvest of friends.
